

Dangerous Man

A MINISTRY OF THE NAVIGATORS

February 15, 2008

Dear friends,

Greetings to you from windy Colorado – hearing the force of the winds rustle against our house these past days cause us to pray “Lord, please keep the shingles from flying off our roof!”

Can you believe it – our favorite baseball teams will be reporting now for spring training?! And there’s no more NFL/Packers football games to watch now for several months!

Over 300 men recently experienced our Colorado Dangerous Man Day, Feb. 2, and we’re both jazzed and grateful for God’s working in their hearts. I just received an email from a friend who brought his son-in-law who is from India:

“He met another Indian man there. After the conference he told me that he was going to be looking for a man that could build into his life and help him be accountable. He asked his friend from church to attend with him next year so... lots to pray about and be excited that God is at work.”

Last week I received word from a friend, Chuck Stecker, describing a group of men meeting in Korea:

Dangerous Man Study in Yongsan, Korea

“These men gather every Tuesday morning at 6:00 am and are using The Making of a Dangerous Man as their resource. The group pictured includes chaplains, military officers & senior non-commissioned officers, embassy personnel, civilian contractors and others. Word is traveling fast and worldwide on your book.”

A pastor recently emailed this note:

“By the way, my 12 year old son and I are going through your Dangerous Man Journal together – reading a section once a week before bed. It’s been great!”

Am I excited and encouraged to hear reports like these? You bet I am! (I don’t receive reports like this every day!)

I see the fingerprints of your friendship, prayer, and partnership in God’s working in the lives of these men and families. Thank you for teaming with us!

Soon I’ll be packing my suitcase for two Dangerous Man Days in Minnesota next week, including our first in a maximum security prison. Knowing you’ll be with us in heart and spirit means the world to us!
